

In Your Control

Maya Stein

It is completely in your control. Be honest in therapy. Turn to the skills that have failed you dozens of times before. They don't work because you aren't trying hard enough. Turn back to them again. Continue taking the medications that make you feel lost and numb. Ignore the noises in your head. Go to class. Go to work. Don't burden people with your problems but don't struggle alone. Create new patterns. Don't be pessimistic. Ignore the spiraling thoughts.

When you do all of this but get sick again anyways, it's your fault. Don't feel sorry for yourself. It is completely in your control.